Ayla and Stacy

Ayla, the hero of our article, is a four legged therapists and the only medication with no side-effects!!!. Ayla, a golden retriever facility dog, works in partnership with her facilitator and handler, Stacy Cook, in the Pet Assisted Program at the Neshoba General Hospital and Nursing Home in Philadelphia, MS. As a fully trained service dog, Ayla knows 44 commands aimed at helping people becoming more independent in therapy as well as in their home and community.

Ayla is a trained Canine Companions for Independence (CCI) dog and can be recognize by her vest, CCI badge and collar.

Let's back up a step or two and learn a little about Canine Companions for Independence (CCI) where Ayla was trained. CCI is the oldest and largest non-profit organization that provides trained dogs, like Ayla, to enhance the lives of children, adults, and veterans with physical disabilities. Founded in 1975, they're leaders in the field and have placed over 3,700 assistance dogs. Canine Companions breeds and trains their own dogs to get the temperament, intelligence, focus, health, and work ethic needed. Their breeding program is highly regarded and looked at by others for best practices. At eight weeks old, puppies are placed with volunteer puppy raisers who raise the puppies for 15 months, teaching basic obedience commands and socialization skills. Then they return the dog to Canine Companions for six months of professional training to learn the 40+ commands they need to know to do tasks for people with disabilities.

Now, back to Ayla and Stacy. Ayla works with patients and residents to help them regain their health, function and independence. Specific rehabilitation goals of the Pet Assisted Program include:

- ★ Improve gait training
- ★ Improve sitting balance
- ★ Improve use of upper extremities
- ★ Improve attention
- ★ Increase motivation for participation and socialization
- ★ Increase auditory comprehension
- ★ Improve sequencing skills
- ★ Improve memory
- ★ Improve word retrieval
- ★ Decrease situational depression.

The goals of the Pet Assisted Program can be achieved through the following types of therapy:

Update! Update! Ayla Wins Awards. Not 1 But 2 For Her Hard Work.

For her first award, Ayla and Stacy scored a perfect score on their public access test in Orlando, Florida. Ayla received best on commands for the entire graduate class and there were teams from all over the country. The CCI, let Stacy, Ayla's person, share in the honor of winning this award.

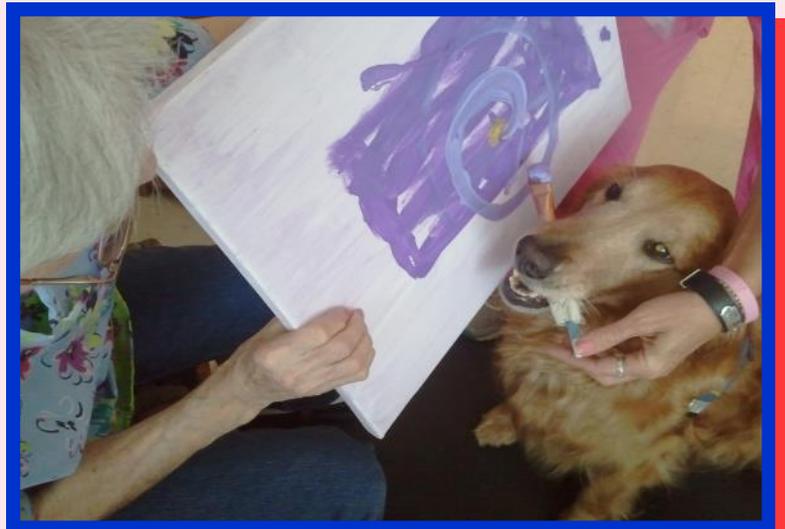

For her second award, Ayla was inducted as an honorary member of the Mississippi Conference on Social Welfare. The Volunteer of the Year Award is designed to acknowledge the accomplishments and dedication of individuals who serve as volunteers in the field of dementia.

This award is given to someone who demonstrates commitment, compassion, competence, and volunteerism in the field of dementia care.

This year, the Volunteer of the Year is actually a honorary Volunteer. As a member of the Animal Assisted Therapy team of Neshoba County General Hospital and Nursing Home, Ayala is in integral part of expressive arts.

Through the work of Ayla and her handler, Stacy Cook, patients and residents are able to create beautiful works of art in a failure free environment. As Ayla assists them with painting, residents who were non-verbal and show little response to care partners begin to interact with Ayla and are active participants in their care.

Thanks to Stacy Cook and the Neshoba County General for supplying information for this article.

GFWC—Home Life Partner

Canine Companions For Independence & Wounded Veteran's Initiative

GFWC is working with Canine Companions for Independence on its Wounded Veteran's Initiative. CCI has provided many assistance dogs to injured service men and women who are returning from the Iraq and Afghanistan wars. With the increase in wounded veterans who could benefit from an assistance dog, we want to do more. For a veteran making a new start putting their life back together from an injury, an assistance dog can provide the help they need to regain independence. For a veteran making a new start putting his or her life back together from an injury, an assistance dog can provide the help they need to regain independence.

As a GFWC-MFWC member you can help by:

- ★ Promote puppy raising. Volunteers are needed to raise puppies from eight weeks to 1-½ years old attending dog obedience classes and socializing the puppy in public settings. Assistance is needed in getting the word out on the need for volunteers.
- ★ Visit and tour a regional training center.
- ★ Meet the Canine Companions Chapter leadership near you and see how you can work together.
- ★ Arrange for a Canine Companions team to speak at your club meeting to learn more about assistance dogs and Canine Companions.
- ★ Volunteer at a center/office or staff a booth.
- ★ Assist with outreach to veteran organizations, including presentations, outreach booth staffing, literature, as well as poster and video distribution.

- ★ Raise funds to help place a dog with a veteran.
- ★ Join Canine Companions Facebook page (www.Facebook.com/CanineCompanions) and help them build their network of "likes".
- ★ Follow Canine Companions on Twitter (@ccicanine).
- ★ Subscribe to their YouTube channel (www.YouTube.com/CanineCompanions) and their blog, Help is a Four-Legged Word (www.Blog.CCI.org).
- ★ Sign up to receive monthly e-newsletters on Canine Companions updates and forward the emails to your friends (www.CCI.org/sign-up).

Their Stories

Matthew Keil and Service Dog Gus

Matthew, a US Army Veteran from Colorado, enjoys traveling, hunting, martial arts and other sporting events. Matthew and his wife Tracy were married just six weeks when Matthew sustained severe combat injuries in Iraq, rendering him quadriplegic with only the use of his left arm. During his hospital stay he heard about Canine Companions and decided to apply for a service dog.

During an intense two-week training program at Canine Companions, Matthew was matched with Gus III, a handsome yellow Labrador/Golden Retriever cross trained to respond to approximately 50 commands.

Matthew said, "My biggest struggle has been needing someone else to do things for me. I fell in love with Gus the first night he came home with us. No more do I have to depend on others all the time — and that means a lot!" There were only a couple of things Matthew could do by himself since the injury but now he said, "Gus allows me to be so much more independent. It's easier to get around and having a buddy by my side to do things with has changed our lives."

Major David Rozelle and CCI Service Dog Domi

"I gave my last command as a cavalry officer, I thought, to secure the area and evacuate the casualties. Unfortunately, I was the casualty," Major David Rozelle, US Army says.

This wasn't his last command. Just 18 months post injury, he became the first US soldier with an amputation to return to the same battlefield since the Civil War.

"I wanted to prove to myself I could do it. What I've learned is that it means a lot to my men to see me -- missing my leg-- and still commanding," shares Maj. Rozelle.

Now, Maj. Rozelle is an inspiration to cadets, but he's not up there alone. Canine Companions Service dog Domi is by his side.

"The first time Domi joined me for a formal address and ceremony, she fell right into formation. She kept perfect parade rest during my address and when I gave her the command, she marched off the field with me in perfect time," says Maj. Rozelle. "I was so proud, I got down on my knees and loved on her."

"Sometimes, I have to show weakness and rest my leg on crutches. On those days, Domi's help is absolutely critical." Maj. Rozelle continues.

Domi's there all the time--- bringing him his leg from across the room or making his three boys laugh as she tries to shake the kitten off her back. Domi has changed Maj. Rozelle's life.

"I've spent ten years at war. I've served three tours of duty. And I've lost my leg. I've had some pretty bad days," Maj. Rozelle continues, "but I haven't had a bad day since Domi came into my life. From the moment she bounces out of her crate wagging her tale every morning to when my boys tell her goodnight--I've never been so happy before," Major Rozelle shares.

Jason and Napal

On a special operation mission with the United States Air Force in South America in 1999, Jason broke his back when his vehicle flipped after being ambushed and crushed the lower half of his body.

A year and a half ago Jason received Canine Companions Service Dog Napal.

"I couldn't stand having to rely on someone else to take care of me," Jason says. "Being in special ops, they don't teach you very much humility. When you have that mentality, and that's the training that's been brought to you, to really humble yourself to have other people help you is extremely tough." he continues. "But I'm telling you, it's so much easier for a dog to do it."

"In fact out of everything I've done to try and improve my life, nothing's even come close to getting my service dog Napal," Jason concludes.

Jay Huston, Army Veteran and Service Dog Timo

Jay has undergone 10 surgeries for spinal injuries after he hit the ground hard from a parachute malfunction eight years ago at Fort Benning, Ga. Jay retired from the Army in 2004 after 20 years of service, but he didn't stop serving his country. He now works as a Senior CBRNE Analyst at the U.S. Northern Command in Colorado Springs. (CBRNE stands for Chemical, Biological, Radiological, Nuclear and High-Yield Explosives.) Jay helps prevent terrorists from using Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMDs) in the U.S

GFWC SPOTLIGHT

This year marks the 90th anniversary of the purchase of GFWC Headquarters at 1734 N Street NW in Washington, D.C., by the General Federation of Women's Clubs. In 1901, the 56th U.S. Congress granted GFWC a Federal Charter, stipulating that we maintain our headquarters in Washington, D.C. The search for a suitable headquarters building centered on the stone-and-brick, five-story mansion near Dupont Circle. GFWC purchased the building at a cost of $70,000, taking possession of it on April 1, 1922. At the 1922 convention in Chautauqua, New York, delegates raised more than $105,000 to complete the payment for the building as well as begin necessary changes and redecoration. Gifts of furnishing and decorating the building and club residence came to the new GFWC Headquarters from State Federations and clubs throughout the country and around the world. GFWC's growth during the first half of the 20th century necessitated the purchase of 1738 N Street and 1728 N Street in the 1950's. In December 1991, GFWC Headquarters was designated a National Historic Landmark by the National Park Service. Most of the public rooms, such as the drawing room, the solarium, and the dining room remain in or have been resorted to their original condition. Click here to view historic photos of our Headquarters home

Every year in the United States, about 71,500 women are diagnosed with a gynecologic cancer, and approximately 26,500 women die from one. The Inside Knowledge: Get the Facts About Gynecologic Cancer campaign raises awareness of the five main types of gynecologic cancer: cervical, ovarian, uterine, vaginal, and vulvar. The campaign encourages women to pay attention to their bodies and know what is normal for them, so they can recognize the warning signs of gynecologic cancers and seek medical care. Inside Knowledge offers information and free resources in English and Spanish about the most common gynecologic cancers. For more information contact Alexandra Vaughn at Alexandra.Vaughn@Ogilvy.com.

Program Spotlight - INMED Partnership For Children

INMED Partnerships for Children, a Juniors' Special Project: Advocate for Children Partner, rescues children from the immediate and irreversible harm of disease, hunger, abuse, neglect, or violence, and prepares them to shape a brighter future for themselves and the next generation. Clubwomen are invited to help INMED advocate for children by taking part in their Face the Challenge Campaign. The campaign is simple. Pick a campaign area; mobilize your club; and raise money and awareness to bring urgently needed solutions to vulnerable children. Visit www.INMED.org/Face-the-Challenge to identify your challenge and download the resources or contact INMED's GFWC Partner Liaison, Joey Shanahan at 310-764-0955 ext. 105 or JShanahan@INMED.org for more information.

Partner Spotlight - Sew Much Comfort

GFWC Partner, Sew Much Comfort, provides free adaptive clothing to support the unique needs of our wounded service members from all branches of the military and National Guard. Because the majority of injuries require large prosthetics or casts, it can be challenging or impossible to wear regular clothing. Wounded service members are often restricted to wearing hospital gowns. Sew Much Comfort produces adaptive clothing that appears like typical civilian apparel. Since its founding in November 2004, Sew Much Comfort has distributed more than 115,000 pieces of this clothing to wounded service members. By volunteering with or donating to Sew Much Comfort, you have the chance to make a difference to the dignity and self-esteem of wounded service members. For more information, visit www.SewMuchComfort.org.

This past year, GFWC members and clubs raised $78,300 for the U.S. Fund for UNICEF. This is the highest amount that GFWC has raised for UNICEF in one year since our organizations began working with each other more than six decades ago. Your persistent support has contributed to the success of numerous UNICEF campaigns and initiatives.

This year, consider helping UNICEF continue to save and improve lives across the globe by supporting the Healthy Villages Program. This life-saving program empowers villagers in the Democratic Republic of the Congo to improve and maintain their own sanitation systems and adopt healthy hygiene practices. To learn more about how you can participate in this campaign, visit www.UNICEFUSA.org/GFWC refer to the International Outreach section of the Club Manual at www.GFWC.org/ClubManual.

MFWC IN THE NEWS!

Come Monday night

Regina Butler
Pontotoc Progress

She's the queen of Christmas parades in Pontotoc. Dot Hardin can remember when the very first parade rolled down Main Street in 1953.

"I remember this so vividly because I was a Jaycette and Claude [her husband] was a Jaycee."

Her daughter, Genie, who was a girl at the time, was in that very first parade, "with Mrs. Mooreland's group."

Hardin said as the years went by the Jaycees and Jaycettes had floats in the parade and she was also part of the parade through the Mississippi Antique car Club.

"In 1956 I remember when the cars came for the parade the late Stanley Faulkner filled those old cars with gasoline. We even had people come in from Memphis for that parade."

Hardin said she and her husband had this 1904 Premier Car that they entered the parade one year during those early years of the parade and the announcer couldn't remember what kind of car it was, "and there are only three of them like it in the world."

In fact, years later, "my grandchildren rode in the parade in that old car with the DAR."

Through the years Hardin has been active in participating in the Christmas parade through the Woman's Club and her children's involvement through school and college.

"I have sat through the cold and storms going to the parade," she said. "And people are good to me by letting me stand in front of them since I am so short, sort of like Zaccheus," she joked.

And now that the sixtieth parade is upon us will we find Dot Hardin there?

She smiled.

"Unless I'm deathly sick or the doctor won't let me, I shall be there with bells on."

Did you know that one in three women, on billion total, will be raped or beaten in her lifetime. Join GFWC and the global One Billion rising movement to demand an end to this atrocity by walking, dancing, and rising up in an act of solidarity and refusal to accept violence against women and girls as a given. WHEREAS, CEDAW is regarded as the most important international mechanism for women's equality; and

WHEREAS, Discrimination against women continues to exist, violating human rights, fostering gender based violence, hampering growth and prosperity of society, and limiting the full potential of women; and

WHEREAS, CEDAW has been ratified by more than 90% of the United Nations Member States; and

WHEREAS, The United States is a leader in the promotion of human rights;

and

RESOLVED, That the General Federation of Women's Clubs supports immediate ratification and implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW); and further

RESOLVED, That the General Federation of Women's Clubs urges its members and member clubs to become active supporters of CEDAW ratification by contacting their United States Senators and the White House to urge their support for U.S. ratification.

Something To Think About... Then Act On... Support Domestic Violence Prevention

- * Every 9 second in the US a woman is assaulted or beaten.
- * Around the world, at least one in every three women has been beaten, coerced into sex or otherwise abused during her lifetime. Most often, the abuser is a member of her own family.

- * Domestic violence is the leading cause of injury to women - more than car accidents, muggings and rapes combined.
- * Studies suggest that up to 10 million children witness some form of domestic violence annually.
- * Nearly 1 in 5 teenage girls who have been in a relationship said a boyfriend threatened violence or self-harm if presented with a breakup.
- * Everyday in the US, more than three women are murdered by their husbands or boyfriends.
- * Domestic violence victims lose nearly 8 million days of paid work per year in the US alone—the equivalent of 32,000 full-time jobs.
- * Based on reports from 10 countries, between 55 percent and 95 percent of women who had been physically abused by their partners had never contacted non-governmental organizations, shelters, or the police for help.
- * The costs of intimate partner violence in the US alone exceed $5.8 billion per year: $4.1 billion are for direct medical and health care services, while productivity losses account for nearly $1.8 billion.
- * Men who as children witnessed their parents' domestic violence were twice as likely to abuse their own wives than sons of nonviolent parents.
- * Nearly three out of four (74%) of Americans personally know someone who is or has been a victim of domestic violence.

GFWC Signature Project: Domestic Violence Awareness and Prevention

MYTHS About Domestic Abuse

Domestic violence only occurs in a small percentage of relationships.

Estimates report that domestic violence occurs in 1/4 to 1/3 of all intimate relationships. This applies to heterosexual as well as same-sex relationships.

Women batter men too.

Although this is true, in 95% of heterosexual domestic violence cases, men are abusive toward women.

Battered women are masochistic/crazy/weak/enjoy being abused.

This places the burden of guilt for being beaten on the survivor, and fails to hold batterers accountable for their choice to be violent to their partners. No one enjoys being abused, regardless of how much they may love their partner.

Middle and upper class women do not get battered as frequently as poor women.

Domestic violence occurs in all socio-economical levels. Because women with money usually have more access to resources, poorer women tend to utilize community agencies, and are therefore more visible.

Women of color and immigrant women are battered more often than white women.

Again, domestic violence occurs across the board in all communities regardless of race, age, nationality, sexual orientation, economic status, education, etc.

Batterers are violent in all their relationships. Batterers "lose control" and become violent.

Batterers choose to be violent toward their partners in ways they would never consider treating other people. Domestic violence is about batterers using their control, not losing their control. Their actions are very deliberate.

Batterers also beat their children.

Not all batterers are also physically abusive to their children. However, all children living in a home with domestic violence experience emotional and psychological abuse when one parent is violent towards the other.

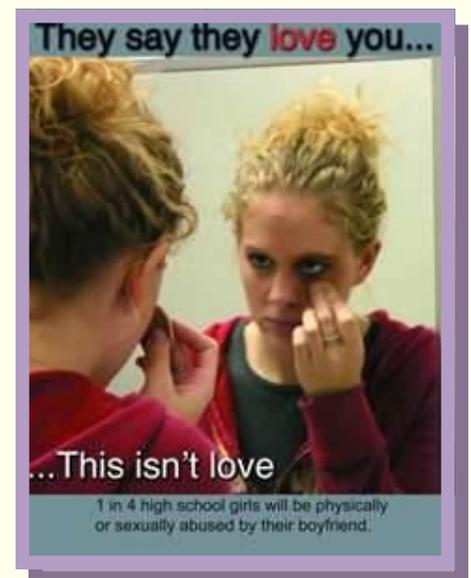

Once a battered woman, always a battered woman.

While some battered women have been in more than one abusive relationship, women who receive domestic violence services are the least likely to enter another abusive relationship

Dating Violence ...

⊗ Approximately one in five female high school students reports being physically and/or sexually abused by a dating partner.

- ⊗ Forty percent of girls age 14 to 17 report knowing someone their age who has been hit or beaten by a boyfriend.
- ⊗ Date rape accounts for almost 70% of sexual assaults reported by adolescent and college age women; 38% of those women are between 14 and 17 years old.
- ⊗ Females ages 16-24 are more vulnerable to intimate partner violence than any other age group - at a rate of almost triple the national average.

- ⊗ Half of the reported date rapes occur among teenagers.
- ⊗ 20% of surveyed male students report witnessing someone they go to high school with physically hit a person they were dating.
- ⊗ 45% of girls know a friend or peer who has been pressured into either intercourse or oral sex.
- ⊗ One in three teens reports knowing a friend or peer who has been hit, punched, kicked, slapped or physically hurt by their dating partner.

February is Teen Dating Violence Awareness and Prevention Month

Facts

Teen Dating Violence (TDV) is an unhealthy relationship that starts early in life and can last a lifetime. Dating violence occurs when harmful behaviors are repeated, creating a pattern of violence.

TDV includes, but is not limited to, four types of behaviors. Below are examples under each type of behavior, but this list is not inclusive of all behaviors that an abuser may display:

- ⊗ Physical Abuse - hitting, kicking, burning, holding down, hair pulling and choking/strangling
- ⊗ Verbal Abuse - Yelling, Name-calling, Threatening to hurt or kill, belittling accomplishments and constant blaming
- ⊗ Sexual Abuse - Committing rape or incest, treating others as sex objects, wanting sex after abuse, calling fat, ugly, no good in bed, constant sexual demands and forcing pregnancy or abortion
- ⊗ Emotional Abuse - Making false promises to end abuse, isolating from others, abusing pets, monitoring conversations and making account or time

For more information about TDV, check out the American Bar Association's 2006 National Teen Dating Violence Prevention Initiative, Liz Claiborne's Love is Not Abuse, or you can contact the Family Violence Prevention Center at (614) 466-0306 for additional resources
